

Pathology Specimens

Ensuring viability in the hot weather!

- The temperature of Pathology transport bags is getting too warm at some collection points.
- Temperature data from the transport provider is showing some sites are sending in Pathology specimens that are over 25°C.
- The padded transport bags do a good job of maintaining their temperature during transit, but are too warm at some collection sites.
- Please do what you can to try and maintain a temperature between 15°C and 25°C, some results can change due to temperature extremes.
